Friday, March 9

8:00 am - 9:30 am  Plenary II: Cognition, Learning, and Emerging Tools  Anasazi Ballroom

Moderator:

Kathleen G. Nelson, M.D.
Senior Associate Dean for Faculty Development
University of Alabama School of Medicine

Speaker(s):

Richard E Mayer, Ph.D.
Professor, Department of Psychology
University of California - Santa Barbara

Session Objectives: Educational scholarship has been advanced by recent findings in diverse disciplines. Generational changes and the availability of technological wizardry often widen the gulf between learner and teacher. This session will discuss the science of cognition and learning, and discuss how existing and emerging technologies can support short- and long-term educational objectives. Various skills workshops will follow to provide training in some of the more useful educational innovations.

9:45 am - 10:45 am  Skills Workshop (I) - Just-in-Time Teaching (JiTT) and Team Based Learning (TBL)  Zia C

Speaker(s):

Debra A. Darosa, Ph.D., M.A.
Professor of Surgery Vice Chair of Education
Northwestern University The Feinberg School of Medicine

Boyd F. Richards, Ph.D.
Assistant Vice President, Center for Educational Research and Evaluation
Columbia University in the City of New York

JiTT is a teaching and learning strategy based on the interaction between web-based study assignments and an active learner classroom; TBL is a strategy designed to develop high-performance learning teams utilizing team engagement in completing learning tasks.

Session Objective: At the November 2011 AAMC Annual Meeting, the CAS Administrative Board gathered input from CAS representatives to inform its deliberations regarding possible changes to the structure and operations of the CAS to better represent faculty within the AAMC. This session, which CAS representatives are strongly urged to attend, will continue that conversation, with the goal of soliciting input that will assist the CAS Administrative Board as it finalizes its recommendations to the AAMC's Board of Directors. Given the importance of this conversation, societies whose representatives cannot attend this session are asked to send an alternate representative.
